eras Development and the Immigration Movement-Side Lights on California. St. Louis Republican.

Mr. John Howard, who, with Judge Samuel J. Radgate of Texas, is in charge of the Texas advertising headquarters, in the Southern hotel, in speaking of the wonderful developments of Texas to a Republican reporter last night, said: "Heretofore about 80 per cent. of the business of Texas has been done in St. Louis, but from the growth of competing cities, in the north, northwest and south, it has gradually last a portion of this business and is to-day losing it at a rapid rate. The development of Texas and the growth of the city of St. Louis are naturally connected with each other and should so recognize their relations and endeavor to extend them and make them mutually profitable. In December there was a convention of the representative citizens of Texas at Dallas, the object of which was to inaugurate measures to present the wonderful facts of the agricultural and horticultural advantages of Texas to the outside world. There were about 800 men in attendance, making a body which would have done credit to any state in the Union. All of these delegates paid their own expenses and came simply from their love to their state, and with a desire to further its interests, and after a short session it was agreed that "The convention then adjourned and time inviting all railroad officials of the state to co-operate. The railroads agreed to grant one-fare tickets from all terminal points leading into Texas about three times a month, and the delegates returned to their respective districts and immediately the countles and towns organized themselves to contribute money to be applied to the general fund for ad vertising the state in general and their respective localities in particular. Thus the movement has become general, and the inducements offered by the railroads are bringing hundreds of people to the state, who come to see whether the facts exist as represented by the advertising and emigration bureau.

"We are of Texas and from Texas and are endeavoring to present these facts on an independent basis to those who may desire to make future homes in the Lone Star state. We are not acting in the interests of any newspaper, corporation or combination of any kind, and have no where we believe exist more advantages and opportunities for the honest, indus-trious men, than anywhere else in this The movement is indorsed all siong the line, by the people, by the rail-road officials from S. turned all y a three months' sojourn in Kansas and California. He was seen at the Laclede and said: "California is the Troops of the California is the Calif greatest fraud in the United States to day, and the advertising schemes and false inducements held out to induce immigration are getting more poor people in trouble and making more tramps than any two states in the west. Los Angeles and San Diego, the two Edens which have been represented in such glowing colors, are not Edens to the tramps who abound there. I remember on severa occasions being met by from two to six of these unhappy citizens and they have stated to me that they had not a cent and that they had come there through false representations of the country and had failed to secure work and had been compelled to go on the streets at from $1.25 to $1.50 per day, and finally that was denied them, and so nothing remaining, they are now begging for their daily bread and watching a chance to go back to their old homes. It was the same at San Diego and also in other parts of the state. These booms have played out and many men of wealth who have been induced to place their capital there are now withdrawing with heavy losses and retiring from the scene of speculation. The climate is not what it is cracked up to be, or at least, I did not find it so, for I was there two months and it rained every day, and I felt most miserable."

She stood at the fare in the late spring twillight, and when she hald good-bye, she felt neuralgia kies her soly cheek; but she only smiled, for her mother had invested 25 cents in a bottle of Salvation Off.

Bow Between a Gambier and a Barber. Whisky and Toughs Plentiful.

Orrrespondence of the Gazette. ARDMORE, TEX , Feb. 13 .- A row occurred this evening between a barber named Maccarone and a gambler named Robinson. It seems that Maccarone had been bucking at the game, lost and at the time charged Robinson with unfair "playing and hot words followed. This eventhey met on the street and renewed the row and soon came to blows. Maccarone drew a six-shooter and struck Robinson over the head, inflicting a painful wound. Robinson ran for a Winchester and Maccarone ran into his shop and came out wearing a double-barreled shotgan but iretreated to his boarding house where he is still holding the fort. has developed no interesting features during the past week. The absence of all speculative movement is still the most prominent feature of the situation, and proves the existence of a conservatism which may or may not be favorable. The abundance and cheapness of money, coming after a year of unprecedented activity and good trade, should naturally engender considerable enter-prise, as well as increase the material for investment and speculation; hence the abscence of such results are thought by some to indicate the existence of unfavorable influences that warrant caution and conservatism. But in spite of the fears of a few, the great majority of fluencial authorities see nothing but encouragement in the outlook. Manufacturers are prosperous, employment is plentiful for all classes of labor and Congress promises no disturbing legislation; hence the prevailing caution is generally regarded as inexplicable.- [Cotton
